OC WATER 101 TEACHES RESIDENTS HOW TO BE WATER WISE
OCWD Offers Free Water Education Class to Local Residents

WHEN: 6 p.m. – 8 p.m., Wednesday, July 25, 2007

WHERE: Orange County Water District (OCWD)
18700 Ward St.
Fountain Valley, CA 92708

WHAT: Free Orange County Water 101

WHO: Local residents over age 13.

WHY: OCWD offers its O.C. Water 101 class to teach Orange County residents who live in this semi-arid region about the scarcity and importance of one of our most precious resources — water. With less water in the future and continued California population growth, how is Orange County going to fare? For those who have always wondered how we live in a desert, but can make Orange County look like a lush green park, this seminar is a must.

O.C Water 101 students will have the opportunity to raise their "water I.Q.s " by gaining valuable knowledge about water in a fun, informal setting. Students will learn about the water situation from global, California and Orange County perspectives, understand the basics of water quality, gain a thorough understanding of OCWD's groundwater basin, and learn about the county's imported water supply. Graduates of O.C. Water 101 will even earn an award certifying their newly gained knowledge.

HOW: Registration is required to attend the class. For more information or to register for the free class, contact Rose Wilke at (714) 378-3206 or visit www.ocwd.com.
