She stated that staff reviewed the schedules of more than 100 public schools across Orange County, as well as previously attending private schools, to ensure a date that maximizes attendance from all board member service areas. She noted the available date at Oak Canyon Park with no school district spring break conflicts is April 15-16, 2026, with James Events Productions providing a rain plan if necessary.

SUBJECT: LEGISLATIVE UPDATE

DATE: August 26, 2025

The Legislature returned from its summer recess on August 18. Just a little over two weeks remain before the Legislature adjourns for its interim recess on September 12.

As you know well, it is typical for major policy negotiations to continue and even intensify in the final weeks of session. It's also not uncommon for brand new proposals to emerge in these final weeks.

That said, legislative leadership and the Governor have left themselves an unusual amount of work. The Governor and the Legislature are working on:

- Reauthorization of the state's Cap and Trade Program
- Proposals related to energy affordability
- A proposal to allow California to participate in a regional marketplace for energy
- A proposal to help stave off the risk of soaring gas prices and stabilize California's remaining oil refineries

This list is far from exhaustive. It is not impossible for the Legislature and Governor to finish their negotiations and advance their agenda, but they have left themselves a lot of ground to cover in just under three weeks.

SB 601 (Allen)

Our firms continue to work closely with OCWD staff and counsel to oppose SB 601, Senator Allen's bill granting the State Water Resources Control Board new authority to regulate water discharges.

Earlier this month, the California Association of Sanitation Agencies (CASA) and the California Stormwater Quality Association (CASQA) offered amendments to Senator Allen to limit the bill's applicability to artificial water bodies like those used in OCWD's groundwater recharge operations. Senator Allen has rejected these amendments.

As such, our firms continue to oppose the bill. It is currently pending consideration in the Senate Appropriations Committee. Like most other bills with cost to the state, it is currently on the "suspense file." The Assembly and Senate will conduct their suspense hearings later this week and we hope to see SB 601 held in committee.

June 18 A coalition of national water sector organizations, including the Association of Municipal Water Agencies (AMWA), convened a congressional briefing in Washington, D.C. focused on the growing challenges utilities face in addressing PFAS contamination. The event drew attention to how federal policies are shaping the responsibilities and liabilities of essential public service providers.

The panel featured experts from across the water, wastewater, solid waste, and local government sectors, and included Jason Dadakis, executive director of water quality and technical resources for OCWD. Jason's testimony echoed concerns shared across the utility community: Congress must enact liability safeguards so the financial burden addressing PFAS rests with polluters; not with the communities tasked with cleaning it up.

SUBJECT: Washington Update

Congress recessed for the summer and returns to work after Labor Day. Since enactment of the One Big Beautiful Bill on July 4th, congressional activities centered on Fiscal Year 2026 spending bills. Because of bipartisan efforts to force a House vote on a resolution calling on the Administration to release the “Epstein Files”, the Speaker recessed earlier than anticipated to block a vote on the resolution. As a result of the early recess, several bills that were scheduled for floor votes were shelved until the House returns to work in September. This included the Promoting Efficient Review for Modern Infrastructure Today Act (PERMIT Act, H.R. 3898). H.R. 3898 would, among other matters, provide for ten year NPDES permits for water agencies. The Administration continued its reorganization efforts and reviewing PFAS standards for water and wastewater facilities’ compliance.

The following summarizes the status of these and other policy issues of interest to Orange County Water District (OCWD)

House and Senate Appropriators Mark-Up Fiscal Year 2026 Appropriations

The House Committee on Appropriations approved the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency’s (USEPA) Fiscal Year 2026 spending priorities. The committee reported out the bill along a party-line vote. The Senate Committee on Appropriations also acted upon its USEPA spending bill. However, unlike the House bill, the Senate appropriators approved their spending bill on a bipartisan vote of 26-2. As part of both committees’ votes to approve the agency’s budget, the Administration’s request to terminate the State Revolving Loan Fund Program was rejected. Instead, the House provided reduced SRF funding ($2.1 billion) while the Senate effectively provided current year funding ($2.7 billion). In addition, the committees left in place the final year of the Bipartisan Infrastructure Law’s water infrastructure funding of approximately $8 billion that is allocated to the States to support lead service lines replacement and PFAS clean-ups.

The House Committee on Appropriations also approved the USBR and U.S. Army Corps of Engineers (USACE) FY 2026 spending bill. The committee approved USBR’s key water programs such as WaterSmart and Title XVI at static levels. USACE spending remains essentially flat for activities that support water supply. FIRO related funding would be supported through a $12 million level. In providing the funding, the committee directed USACE to report on how FIRO can be incorporated into all flood control manuals as well as anticipated future FIRO funding needs.

Importance of Appropriations Process

The positive committee actions on the USEPA spending bill means that should the House and Senate find common ground to compromise on spending levels; a final spending bill could reach the President for enactment. However, the ongoing disputes centering on impoundment of funds and potentially additional rescissions of Fiscal Year 2025 spending decisions complicates the outlook of final passage of Fiscal Year 2026. If Congress can develop compromise funding bills, it is unlikely to occur before November or December. Absent an agreement, a full year Continuing Resolution would be required throwing in doubt funding of projects since such measures do not provide funding for congressionally directed project spending. Of note, the House committee approved bill provides OCWD with $750,000 to support continued clean-up of its groundwater. This funding was requested by Rep. Young Kim and represents a funding level similar to other earmarks, reflecting the reduced funding levels for projects during this year's appropriations drafting effort. Rep. Lou Correa also secured $750,000 to support PFAS clean-up of groundwater supplies within the OCWD service region.

PFAS Mandates

The pending legal challenge to USEPA's designation of Per- and Polyfluoroalkyl substances (PFAS) under Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act (CERCLA) that triggers potential liability for the water sector remains on hold as the agency reviews its options on how to proceed with the legal challenge. The agency is expected to provide the court with its position on whether it will defend against the litigation filed by the Chamber of Commerce and other groups in the next forty-five days. Because the litigation is based upon the process used to designate PFAS as a hazardous substance, the decision to defend or not will likely rest upon whether the agency believes it followed the Administrative Procedures Act in designating the chemicals as hazardous substances.

The other pending litigation, challenging the economics of the 4PPT drinking water standard (MCL) continues. The agency informed the court that it would defend its decision to leave in place the 4PPT MCL, extension of the compliance schedule, and re-evaluating the decision to regulate Gen X and other PFAS chemicals relying upon a novel hazard index approach that would reduce the need for individual MCLs. Formal court briefs are expected to be submitted in September setting the stage for formal court proceedings to begin.

The agency also closed the public comment period for the Draft Risk Assessment Model for biosolids and PFAS on August 14. More than two thousand comments on the Draft Risk Assessment Model that would set a 1 part-per-billion (PPB) exposure level for PFAS in biosolids were received from the public, municipal, agriculture and industry questioning the science upon which USEPA designed the model. The comments, including those from CASA, cited the lack of validated science and current research as well as questionable assumptions on the nature of plant and human exposure to PFAS. The agency also held listening sessions with key groups, including biosolids managers, drinking water and clean water stakeholders. In the listening sessions, the agency was informed that the model relied upon inaccurate data and assumptions to arrive at the stringent 1 PPB standard that would foreclose the use of land application of biosolids. The agency did not indicate how it perceived such positions except to note that it believes the staff developed model remains the focus of finalizing the document. At the same time, agency staff indicate that any decision on the model's finalization will be determined by senior political appointees.

The Senate Committee on Appropriations did approve its version of USEPA's FY 2026 spending bill. In so doing, agency's spending bill. However, the Senate bill states support for the implementation of the 4PPT drinking water MCL and the designation of PFAS as a hazardous substance under Superfund. The spending bill also provides the agency with $9 million to support ongoing research into plant and animal PFAS uptake as well as potential groundwater impacts.

Importance of PFAS Mandates

The ongoing litigation related to the PFAS rules, and the delayed finalization of the Draft Risk Assessment Model is important because it creates ongoing uncertainty on 1) what the final drinking water standard and potential CERCLA liability will be, and 2) acceptable management practices for biosolids.

As a result in the absence of final federal policies and standards, water (and wastewater) agencies will continue to be subject to state mandates. For drinking water agencies, the ongoing litigation will likely unfold over the next years' time. Given that the agency is seeking to extend the MCL compliance deadline by two years, until 2031, the pending litigation will presumably determine whether the 4PPT MCL prevails before the deadline is triggered.

While biosolids management is not directly related to drinking water agencies, the ongoing debate surrounding the agency's Draft Risk Assessment could create unfounded and growing concerns over PFAS contamination levels. The 1PPB level of the Draft Risk Assessment Model has been relied upon by several states which, if implemented, would effectively eliminate the continued land application of many biosolids. Because of this potential, stakeholders are urging the agency to issue national guidance on an approach that relies on the "Michigan Model" until the risk assessment is finalized. The model is designed to take into account varying PFAS levels in biosolids due to the composition of dischargers in a treatment works service area. The model considers whether industrial discharges into treatment works influence the concentration levels. If industrial dischargers were found to be the primary source of high PFAS levels, then the model would dictate source control to reduce PFAS levels in biosolids prior to land application and other management practices.

NPDES Permitting and Clean Water Act Reforms Legislation

The House Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure's Promoting Efficient Review for Modern Infrastructure Today Act (PERMIT Act, H.R. 3898) remains pending on the House calendar for floor debate and a vote on passage. H.R. 3898 includes National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System (NPDES) permit terms of ten years, codification of exemptions from Waters of the U.S. (WOTUS) definitions for wastewater and groundwater, codification of Supreme Court's decision on narrative nutrient standards (City and County of San Francisco v. EPA Decision). The House is expected to debate and vote on H. R. 3898 in September at the earliest.

In the Senate, the Committee on Environment and Public Works is reportedly working to develop bi-partisan permit reform legislation that it could consider later this fall. According to committee staff, providing extended NPDES permit terms is under discussion.

Importance of Legislation

Passage of H.R. 3898 would set the stage for the Senate to consider Clean Water Act permitting reforms. If the Senate committee considers permit reforms, which currently enjoy bipartisan interest, the prospect for enactment would increase significantly. If enacted, NPDES permittees would benefit from reduced administrative burdens and savings related to compliance costs. In addition to the permit term provision, the codification of the nutrient decision would ensure that any Clean Water Act nutrient mandates imposed upon point sources would be based upon statutory directives. This provision, if enacted, would eliminate a situation that occurred with the WOTUS rulemaking where a lack of clarity on WOTUS definitions complicated compliance obligations.
